Monthly Commentary

September capped a strong quarter for credit markets, supported by resilient U.S. growth and the Fed’s first rate cut of the easing cycle. GDP expanded 3.8% annualized in Q2 (2.1% YoY), underscoring stable momentum even as labor conditions softened, with payroll growth averaging +27k per month and unemployment steady at 4.3%. The Fed signalled scope for two additional cuts this year, while futures imply up to five by end-2026, potentially lowering the policy rate toward 3%. Easing policy is expected to sustain real GDP growth near 2% into 2026. Meanwhile, optimism around AI-driven investment and long-term productivity gains continued to underpin sentiment, even as investors monitored renewed tariff uncertainty and the risk of a U.S. government shutdown. Treasury yields edged lower, with the 10Y falling to 4.15%, while the long end remained firm near 4.7%.

The Bloomberg Global High Yield Index (LG50TRUU Index) advanced +1.56% in August, supported by stable spreads and stronger risk sentiment. By rating, performance dispersion was modest with BB USD corporates outperforming both BBB and B rated corporate credits. Sector leadership came from Consumer Discretionary and Energy , while Consumer Staples and Technology lagged.

The Fund delivered a positive return of +0.22% in September, supported by carry income and exposure to resilient credits. We remain defensively positioned, focusing on issuers with strong fundamentals and limited refinancing risk amid softer labor trends and policy uncertainty.

Risk and Reward Profile

Credit and Default Risk: A decline in the financial health of an issuer of a fixed income security can lead to an inability or unwillingness to repay a loan or meet a contractual obligation. This could cause the value of its bonds to depreciate.

Currency Risk: Changes in exchange rates may cause the value of investments to decrease or increase.

Liquidity Risk: Difficult market conditions could result in certain securities becoming hard to sell at a desired time and price.

Interest Rate Risk: Changes in interest rates will usually result in the values of bond and other debt instruments moving in the opposite direction (e.g., a rise in interest rates likely leads to fall in bond prices).
